

Fact sheet for the Swiss Freeski Tour

The Swiss Freeski Tour offers the opportunity for talented people to measure their skills against one another and present their spectacular tricks to a wide audience at a national level. Twelve one-day or multi-day contents will bring forward the best skiers by the end of the season. The Swiss Freeski Tour serves as a springboard to the international freeski scene for up-and-coming athletes and welcomes more than 650 participants per year. Kim Gubser and Valentin Morel, two freeskiers who regularly participate at the Swiss Freeski Tour, were at the start of the 2018 Junior World Championships in New Zealand. Gubser won bronze in slopestyle. The two Olympic medal winners Sarah Höfflin and Mathilde Gremaud are also former Tour participants. The Tour is regarded as one of the most important junior tours in Europe in its sport and attracts World Cup riders to the start again and again.

Conditions of participation and registration

While only licensed skiers are admitted to the FIS races, it is possible for all athletes to participate in the open competitions. Insurance and equipment are the responsibility of the person taking part. Further requirements are stated in the conditions of participation. Registration can be carried out online or at the event; early registration online (<https://www.swiss-ski.ch/events/swiss-freeski-tour/>) is recommended (CHF 10 cheaper).
